INSIGHTS
IDEAS
RESULTS

The Corporate Bond Fund aims to provide a more secure future for investors looking for capital stability and a regular income from their investments.

To achieve this, the Fund invests in an actively managed portfolio of corporate bonds, focusing predominately on investment-grade bonds in the Australian market.

This month in brief

Performance

The Fund produced a negative return (before fees) in the December quarter. Interest rate moves were the primary driver of this result, reflecting sharp moves higher in bond yields as markets reassessed upwards the likelihood of future hikes in the cash rate. These moves led to sharp losses across Australian and global fixed income products in general, with the Fund being one of the better performers on this front. Credit positioning benefited performance, as the contribution from carry more than offset the impact of credit spread movements. At the sector level, allocations to subordinated banks, diversified financials and consumer discretionary were the top performers. Allocations to securitised product and consumer staples were the only detractors. At the security level, exposures to ABN AMRO Bank, ING Groep and BPCE were the main contributors. Exposures to AusNet Services Holdings, Westconnex Finance Company and Woolworths Group were the main detractors. During the quarter, the Fund participated in primary issuance from Optus Finance, Bank of Queensland, Ampol, Computershare and Driver Australia.

Portfolio positioning

Current positioning has our credit exposures generating a strong level of excess yield, whilst not being overly exposed to any potential future bouts of volatility. More recently, we have been taking profit on exposures that have traded within our expectations of fair value and have added some credit derivative protection against a mild sell-off. Despite this recent action, over the medium term, we continue to anticipate that credit spreads will ultimately tighten modestly, mainly due to the complimentary dynamics of supply versus demand and reach for yield. Our fundamental sector and stock selection process continues to emphasise quality issuers whose credit profiles are supported by strong operating cash flows, sound liquidity profiles and an ability and commitment to maintain their credit ratings through this cycle.

Looking ahead

We continue to see an uneven and bumpy recovery across regions and sectors. Policy will remain easy, but we are likely to see continued pressure to reprice inflation and real yields, as progress to close output gaps continues. We remain constructive on credit positioning, with excess returns most likely to be derived from income. Speculative default rates continue to fall in line with the economic recovery. The improvement to the commodity outlook has helped stabilise the negative trajectory of pockets of the energy and mining sectors' ratings. Credit deterioration has also bottomed in aggregate, all of which combined seem supportive for continued sound performance from investment grade credit markets, with continued positive rating upgrade action as a result.

Plan your income

A forecast monthly income amount is regularly provided, and is currently estimated to be 0.175% per month until December 2021. For illustrative purposes, the chart below represents income based on $100K investment.

*Effective yield is based on the unit price at the start of the period. It is important to note that the final annualised distribution yield will not be known until the end of the financial year, that the distribution yield estimate isn't guaranteed, and that it may change over the period due to market movements in the Fund unit prices. We base our estimate on assumptions set out at the end of this document, and you should be aware that if facts differ from our assumptions, the final distribution yield may differ from the estimate.
