Fund commentary

The Antares High Growth Shares Fund delivered a return of 2.3% (net of fees) for the month of October 2020.¹

Australian shares provided a positive surprise with a modest gain in October. The Federal Budget's announcement of income tax cuts and investment allowances was positively received by investors. News that Melbourne's virus outbreak appeared to be contained with lockdown restrictions being gradually eased also assisted Australian share prices. Information Technology shares led the market buoyed by a takeover bid for Link Administration and another strong performance from Afterpay. Financial sector shares also surged with optimism that a supportive Federal Budget and Melbourne's revival would mitigate potential loan losses with business and housing loans deferrals. However the industrials and energy sectors disappointed.

Contributing to Fund performance were overweight holdings in Nine Entertainment (NEC), Afterpay (APT) and BlueScope (BSL). NEC's share price has continued to rise post delivering its results in August. The market is recognising NEC's success in transforming a large proportion of its business to a digital subscription model. APT made a series of positive announcements during October including a tie-up with Westpac as the first partner on its new digital banking platform, a strong 1Q21 business update that revealed a 115% increase in underlying sales on the pcp and confirmation that AUSTRAC would not be taking any further regulatory action in relation to the AML/CTF Act. BSL provided a trading update in late October that indicated 1HFY21 earnings before interest and tax would be 30% ahead of the previous half (2HFY20). The company was enjoying strong demand for its products in Australia and the US.

Detracting value were overweight positions in Aristocrat Leisure (ALL) and Atlas Arteria (ALX) and an underweight position in CBA. While there was no new news from ALL, the stock has been very strong in recent months as the US Casino market opened from COVID ahead of people's expectations. With COVID cases re-accelerating in the US the market may have looked to lock in some of those recent gains. The rapid escalation in coronavirus cases in Europe and subsequent lockdowns was a negative for toll road operators including ALX.

The banking sector rose strongly in October with the prospect of a loosening in the responsible lending laws and some hope that bad debts could be not as bad as feared.

Australia's economic data and survey measures continue to deliver mixed signals, with some bright spots. Employment and retail spending softened in September as Melbourne's virus lockdown weighed on activity. However there were some encouraging signs. Business surveys shows signs of stabilising while consumer sentiment rebounded in October with optimism that the virus was being contained. Late in the month there were signs that Victoria would significantly ease coronavirus restrictions as the number of new cases hit zero. More announcements were made about state borders opening and (one way) flights resumed with New Zealand. The mood was tempered by continuing trade issues with China and uncertainty about how the US election will play out.

Investment terms and guidelines

Short selling involves borrowing a share from a prime broker to sell to the market, with an agreement to purchase that share back at a later date. When the Fund short sells a share, we anticipate taking advantage of declines in the price of that share by selling the share at one price, and then aiming to buy back that share at a subsequent lower price. Short selling is limited to 25% of the value of the Fund's net assets.

Enhanced long positions refer to the shares in which the Fund holds the largest overweight positions when compared to its benchmark weighting. Long positions are limited to 125% of the value of the Fund's net assets. All long and short positions will be managed to provide investors with a gross exposure to the sharemarket of up to 150%, but the overall net exposure will be between 90 - 100%.

Active trading refers to trading in shares where the Fund has held a range of different positions over a relatively short period of time, with a view to fully exploiting all available opportunities to add value as market circumstances change. It may also involve simply managing an overweight or other position held - adding to or reducing the position to benefit from smaller movements in the share price.
