

Major developed equity markets rebounded in October headlined by US Dow Jones which recorded its best month since 1976, up +14%. The Small Ordinaries Accumulation Index gained +6.5% whilst the Eley Griffiths Group Small Companies Fund finished +5.9% higher and since inception (September 2003) the Fund has returned +9.8% p.a. after fees for unitholders.

Markets moved higher on data released in October showing signs of inflation slowing. Global shipping costs, median rents and wages growth measured by the Employment Cost Index (ECI) all moderated in the month. US corporate earnings results proved more resilient than expected aiding the market upswing. Of the firms that had reported, 70% had beaten analyst's forecasts (UBS Research, 2 November 2022). Domestically, the Reserve Bank of Australia (RBA) increased the cash rate by 0.25%, nonetheless equity markets rallied on commentary that rises will likely slow (Minutes of the Monetary Policy Meeting of the RBA, 4 October).

Companies with trusted leadership executing their strategy were rewarded by investors. Contributing to returns in the month was fashion retailer Lovisa Holdings (+15%) which Annual General Meeting increased the markets confidence in the new region store rollout plan. Gold miner Capricorn Metals (+13%) announced its maiden profit result after a successful first year of operations at the Karlawinda Gold Project.

Weighing on returns was NIB Holdings (-10%) which announced a capital raise to fund its NDIS market entry via acquisition, a roll-up of plan management businesses. Costa Group (-13%) downgraded CY22 earnings expectations due to adverse weather impacting citrus operations.

As company fundamentals have taken a backseat to economic and geopolitical news flow which has dominated the market narrative, no one investment style has consistently outperformed for more than two months this year. As a style agnostic manager, not being restricted by a style bias or sector exclusions, has been advantageous against a volatile backdrop
