Market capitalisation

Performance summary

- The Fund returned 2.52%, net of fees, in February 2023, compared with a return for the Benchmark of 2.09%, as the US Federal Reserve signalled its intention to keep interest rates higher for longer.
- Cyclical sectors including IT, Industrials and Financials supported the market in February, while Real Estate, Energy and Utilities lagged. The largest relative contributors to the Fund were holdings in Industrials, including SKF and Allison Transmission, and in Communication Services, led by Publicis Groupe. Holdings in IT, such as Intel and Samsung Electronics, and an underweight to the sector were the largest relative detractors.
- Publicis Groupe and SKF were among the top individual contributors in February. French advertising company Publicis released full-year earnings, highlighting 2022 organic growth backed by its productive Epsilon and Sapient divisions. Seemingly resistant to macroeconomic concerns, the company laid out upbeat full year 2023 organic growth guidance, pointing to continued client investment in non-traditional marketing venues, such as data, technology, and digital transformation. Swedish bearing and seal manufacturer SKF reported strong fourth quarter 2022 results, signalling that the company caught up on the cost curve and is set to benefit from organic growth on pricing, mix, and volume. The company noted solid industrial and auto sector demand, specifically highlighting their ball bearing applications in the burgeoning electric vehicle (EV) marketplace.
- Lundin Mining and SLM were among the top individual detractors in February. Lundin Mining declined in lockstep with the overall mining industry. The downward trend was further aggravated by news that the Canadian firm's copper reserves decreased, excluding the recently acquired Josemaria Resources project. SLM, a provider of education loans, reported lacklustre earnings with higher-than-expected provisions, elevated net charge-offs and a weak 2023 outlook.
- There were no initial purchases or final sales within the portfolio during the month.
