Global equity markets bounced in July on the prospect of peak inflation, peak rates and a benign US reporting season. The Dynamic Small Companies Fund returned 8.4% for the month, behind the S&P/ASX Small Ordinaries which rallied 11.4%. While our cautious positioning provided a degree of cash performance drag, we were very pleased to largely keep up with the index with a far less risky portfolio.

Performance was led by Neuren Pharmaceuticals, which rallied 48.4% following the submission of Phase III trial results to the FDA. The FDA now have 60 days to accept the filing before triggering a milestone payment. Its drug Trofinetide treats Rett Syndrome – a rare neurological disease predominantly affecting females. We believe the probability of a successful approval is high and are excited at commercialisation prospects. Additional early-stage drugs in the portfolio treating markets far larger than Rett Syndrome provide further valuation optionality.

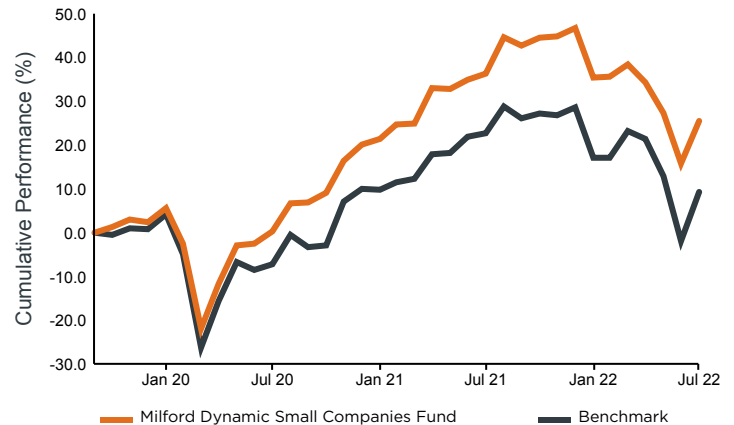

Investment platform HUB24 was a large contributor for the month (+20.2%). Sustained inflows strengthen our view that HUB are a structural winner as financial advisors migrate away from the major banks, favouring smaller more nimble advice firms which use HUB. HUB is also a beneficiary of higher cash rates, providing some offset to potentially slower flows from a volatile environment.

CarSales (+12.3%) rallied following the completion of its buyout of RV and commercial vehicle marketplace Trader Interactive. The acquisition underpins Carsales' international growth prospects and provides leverage to a recovering US truck market. We view CarSales as a relative defensive technology position. While many other technology companies have been beneficiaries of the Covid environment, CarSales has been a laggard given subdued volumes.

Detractors included oil refiner and convenience retailer Viva Energy (-8.0%). Viva has been a resilient position for the Fund and has been a key positive contributor in 2022 having rallied 15.3%.

We remain cautiously positioned having prioritised liquidity, and higher quality defensive stocks. From our perspective, medium term consensus margin expectations remain optimistic given a backdrop of rising inflation and softening consumer demand. As we await more comfort on the economic outlook, we continue to build out a long shopping list of growth businesses to add to the portfolio once they reach more compelling prices in the coming months.
