Fund commentary

Fund participates in two capital raisings for Star Entertainment and Top Shelf International.

Star Entertainment announced $800m capital raising structured as a 3-for-5 entitlement and a $115m institutional placement. The Fund took up its entitlement in full. The capital raising follows the NSW government's proposal to increase taxes on casino tables and EGMs. This announcement was unexpected and our view of tax certainty was off the mark. Our focus has been gaining clarity around the earnings power of Star Sydney in the event NSW tax proposal goes through as planned. At Star's current share price, the market is heavily discounting the group's earnings power given the elevated uncertainty. With the balance sheet now repaired the share price move feels overdone. Furthermore, with the focus squarely on NSW there is less focus on the launch of Queens Wharf Brisbane, which we think has potential to surprise positively over a medium term as the property ramps up.

Top Shelf International also announced $10m capital raising via an institutional placement to fund the development of its agave business. The Fund participated in the placement. While Top Shelf has achieved strong revenue traction in both whisky and vodka, the company now needs to make the transition to one which self-funds its growth ambitions. We think this will be aided by the launch of their agave brand in the second half of 2023 which to date has required material investment while not contributing to revenue.
