

Key Takeaways

- Heightened volatility continued through May as competing perspectives on future growth and inflation caused markets to whipsaw.
- Value, more specifically defensive/low volatility value, continued to outperform growth, extending the 2022 trend.
- Against this backdrop the Antipodes Global Fund – Long outperformed the benchmark over the month and remains meaningfully ahead over the calendar-year-to-date.

Commentary

Despite heightened volatility, global equities were relatively unchanged in May (-0.9%) with energy, utilities and financials outperforming and consumer staples, consumer discretionary and information technology underperforming.

US equities underperformed broader markets over the month (-1.2%). The Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) hiked the federal funds rate by 50bps and further signalled more rate rises are to come, as the FOMC seeks to combat inflation. Whilst the FOMC speakers messaging became more mixed during the month, broader investor fears around economic growth persist.

European equities outperformed (-0.2%) over the month, with strong consumer confidence and high inflation data fuelling a more hawkish tone from the European Central Bank and likelihood of a hike in the near future. The Bank of England also lifted rates again in May.

Asian equities also broadly outperformed (-0.1%). Chinese equities outperformed broader Asian and global markets (+0.9%) with continued commentary highlighting assistance from the Government & People's Bank of China (PBOC). Whilst several cities, including Shanghai, spent much of May in lockdown, there was notable easing in restrictions towards the end of the month. Japanese equities also outperformed over the month (+0.7%) while the Bank of Japan continued their diverging policy, with signs of stability in the Yen. Indian equities were weaker (-6.7%) with the Reserve Bank of India announcing an inter-meeting rate hike rising to combat rising inflation.

Elsewhere, Brent Crude (+12.4% in USD) was strong, Gold (-3.1%) was down, as was the US Dollar (-1.2%).

Key contributors included:

- Consumer Cyclical – Developed Markets cluster. Italian bank, UniCredit confirmed a cash dividend of € 1.2bn on 2021 results and reconfirmed the proposed € 2.6bn buyback contingent on its core capital ratio remaining above 13%. Similarly, ING Groep announced the commencement of the next stage of the company's share buyback programme, part of the € 1.25bn programme to return capital to our shareholders.

- Oil & Natural Gas cluster, notably EQT Corp and Coterra Energy contributed to portfolio performance in May with both companies benefitting from the renewed surge in demand for US gas exports.
- Hardware Cluster, notably Mediatek whereby short-term investor sentiment around chip demand stemming from weaker handset volumes in China was allayed by a reiteration from the company chairman that the company remains upbeat around expectation of 15% annual revenue growth over the next three years.

Key detractors included:

- Internet/Software – Asia/EM, notably JD.com, despite reporting stronger than expected first quarter bottom line results, investor sentiment remained wary of lower goods consumption in China throughout April and into May. Similarly, there remains lingering overhang around Prosus and any potential divestment, as one of JD.com's largest shareholders, following Tencent's divestment in March.
- Consumer Cyclical – Asia/EM, notably Trip.com which was impacted by poorer investor sentiment from continued lockdowns in major Chinese cities throughout May, and a lower expected volume of domestic travellers for the annual Dragon Boat Festival holiday in early June, despite an easing of restrictions later in the month.
