Fund commentary

The Russell Investments Growth Fund performed in line with the benchmark in April. The Fund's 90% allocation to growth assets such as Australian and global equities and listed property drives returns.

The Fund's global and domestic equity portfolios contributed positively to performance over the period. In terms of global equities, both the Russell Investments Tax Effective Global Shares Fund (TEGS) and the Russell Investments Multi-Asset Factor Exposure Fund outperformed their respective benchmarks in April. TEGS in particular benefited from its value bias and strong stock selection in Continental Europe. Within our Australian equity portfolio, the Russell Investments Australian Shares Core Fund and the Russell Investments Australian Opportunities Fund recorded positive excess returns for the month. Both funds benefited from their value bias and a sizable underweight to BHP Group. Partly offsetting this was our exposure to the Russell Investments Australian Factor Exposure Fund, which narrowly underperformed its benchmark in April. Our exposure to Australian listed property added further value over the period. Australian listed property outperformed the broader domestic equity market amid better-than-expected earnings within the sector. Within our traditional fixed income portfolio, the Russell Investments International Bond Fund – $A Hedged delivered negative absolute returns for the month, though it did slightly outperform its benchmark. The Russell Investments Australian Bond Fund recorded both negative absolute and benchmark-relative returns over the period. Credit returns were slightly negative in April, though global floating rate credit did outperform given its low sensitivity to interest rates. Our global listed property and global listed infrastructure exposures also weighed on performance in April.
