Fund commentary

The Russell Investments International Property Securities Fund (AUD hedged) narrowly outperformed the benchmark in January.

Contributing to the Fund's outperformance was stock selection in Continental Europe, including an ex-benchmark holding in Spain's Cellnex Telecom S.A., which jumped almost 14% on reports that American Tower REIT and Brookfield Asset Management were weighing a takeover bid for the company. Stock selection in Australia also added value in January; notably ex-benchmark holdings in Charter Hall Group and industrial property giant Goodman Group. Other key holdings to add value were underweights to Japanese real estate investment trust Nippon Building Fund and US casino operator Gaming and Leisure Properties. In contrast, stock selection in the US detracted from overall returns, including underweights to strong-performing names like Prologis and Equinix. Performance was further impacted by stock selection in Asia Pacific ex Japan; notably ex-benchmark holdings in Hong Kong's Sun Hung Kai Properties and Wharf Real Estate Investment Co. In terms of strategic factor positioning, our tilt toward size added value in January, while our quality bias detracted from returns. Momentum, value and volatility factors had no meaningful impact on overall performance.

Moving forward, the Fund is positioned with tilts toward the UK and Asia Pacific ex Japan and away from North America and Continental Europe. In terms of sectors, we prefer residential, net lease and data centres and maintain underweights to office, lodging and shopping centres. We also maintain strategic overweights to both quality and size.
